An unexplained phenomenon sets the very young British Navy Lieutenant Neville Burton, born in the year 1780, aboard the Dutch prize frigate Swan as it sets sail for the West Indies in 1690. Wait! This is no sequel to A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court, and it's not Sci-Fi. This second volume of the Neville Burton Worlds Apart Series continues the saga of a Royal Navy officer - albeit he is dropped into familiar surroundings in a very different time. The sailing of a British Navy frigate did not change drastically during this hundred years of the Age of Sail. Weapons did, though not so much as to make them unrecognizable. The Caribbean in the 1690s was the world's Wild West. Spain's ownership of it was being eroded by the Dutch, English, French, privateers and the ubiquitous buccaneers and pirates. These latecomers settled the islands and began fighting over the most prosperous properties in the New World. Faced with no alternative, Burton carries on his duties until a serious...
