Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Records of the Governor and Council of the State of Vermont, Vol. 2 If this was judge John Fassett, he must have been an octogenarian at the time of his migration. - See Hiland Hall's Early History; Demings Catalogue; and Vt. Hist. Magazine, Vol. II. John Throop of Pomfret first appeared in the records of that town as justice of the peace in 1773, when the town was organized. His first appearance in the Vermont State records was as a delegate in the Convention at Windsor, June, 4 1777. He was a delegate in the Conventions of July and December of that year also. His name appears in the roll of the first Council in Ira Allens History, Slade's State Papers, and Demings Catalogue; but it does not appear in the records of the Council, whereas that of Moses Robinson does appear in that, and not in the three lists first named. The historian of Pomfret in Z. Thompson's Gazetteer (1824) states that the town was first represented, in 1778, by John Throop. His...
